To Deborah Weston No.36

«New Bedford, Mass.» The writer is mystified. When the addressee left New Bedford, he understood that she would return and made no move towards getting another teacher. The matter has occasioned him much uneasiness, but he is willing to ascribe it to a misunderstanding. "The young ladies have been incessant in their enquiries after you." Nothing has been determined about the High School. "You say that you are willing to return for a whole quarter." If the writer continues in his own school (instead of the High School) "the services of no other lady could be as valuable to me as yours."

[New Bedford, Mass.] The School Committee of New Bedford have given the writer the mastership of the school about to be established. The addressee will therefore consider herself released from her engagement to return for another quarter, if needed. "the girls will be greatly disappointed." Miss Baylies has the Female Department of the Public School. During vacation the writer's schoolhouse was broken into and every locked desk forced open, including the addressee's, and some of her drawings were probably stolen.

ₑSprings Garden, Ohioₐ The writer says the Abolitionists in her neighborhood are either Christian Abolitionists or favor the Liberty party. Mentions the Philanthropist and its successor, the National Era. Seven years ago the Sewing Circle was organized to help the fugitive slaves. The writer wants to organize a Garrisonian society in Cincinnati. Would rather do this than work with the Salem group. Wants the constitution of the American Anti-Slavery Society. Says that many Sewing Circle members fear to join a Garrisonian society because of the churches. "The cholera although not as bad as last year is very fatal ... and m[illegible] intense this summer than I have ever known ..." Menti[illegible] Douglass's visit and praises him. ‹Boston› The writer wishes to persuade the addressee of the propriety of "aiding our efforts in Cincinnati." Says that she is in agreement with the addressee's Anti-Slavery principles, and would like to see them advocated in Cincinnati. "All the Anti-Slavery influences there now, are Political ..." The writer tells how she used the funds she collected. The Anti-Slavery Bugle, the Vigilance Committee, "who take charge of the Underground Railroad," H. Bibb's Voice of the Fugitive, Dr. Brisbane, and general expenses received most of the money. The writer will not work for the New Organization, but has to work with it, "Now I want a [illegible]dsome lot of things" for the Anti-Slavery fairs, includin[illegible]banner and baskets of Sea Mosses.

[Spring Garden, (O.hio)] The writer was much pleased with the Anti-Slavery Bazaar Report. Says she has to work hard to prevent the money, raised by her Anti-Slavery fair from being wasted on unimportant projects, such as "the Running off of Fugitives ... and our colored orphan asylum ..." Tells of the behavior and attitude of the local partisan newspapers. Says Says that the Anti-Slavery cause is making slow but sure progress. The Boston Abolitionists have been the only ones "beyond our immediate vicinity who have done anything for us." "I am delighted that Mr. Garrison and Miss Hollie[sic] are coming ..." Erving, George William.

Ch C 11.46

1799 Erving, George William, 1771-1850; minister to Spain.
June 19

To John Singleton Copley, at London.

[Boston, Mass.] Has talked with Mr. Joy and can see no possibility of obtaining a higher price for the land than fifteen hundred dollars. States Mr. Joy's feeling in regard to the loss of the deed of property, and his plans for laying the property off into house lots along Bishop Stoke Street and Seward Street. Advises him to sell at the price offered, if he does not wish to wait the few years that must pass before the value of land increases. Wishes to be given full power of attorney in order to transact any business that Copley may desire. A.L.S. 4p. 9 x 7 1/4 in.

I Copley, John Singleton

Ch C 11.44

1804 July 5 Erving, George William, 1771-1850; minister to Spain.

To ?

[London, Eng.] Since first writing to him on the subject of Mr. Hollis' intended benefaction to the college, has not heard from him, and fears that he is ill and will not recover. Apprehensive for his plan of obtaining the benefaction on that account. Believes that a wholly Republican legislature would effect a radical change in the system of education. Refers to Princeton as a "pernicious seminary" of federalism. Believes that philosophical principles will soon undermine the priestcraft of the eastern states. A.L.S. 3p. 10 x 8 in.

Erving, George William, 1771-1850; minister to Spain.

To Moses Young.

[Seville, Spain.] Has written three times within the past two weeks because of his apprehension for the safety of Dr. Gough. Gough was advised to insist on the protection of the law to which he is entitled, and to demand a passport to leave Madrid. But he was seized and imprisoned and forbidden all communication. Has sent three letters to ministers who might be of influence in securing his release. Expects to learn the full particulars upon the arrival of the Don Felix Minnos' family. A.L.S. 2p. 12 x 8 1/4 in.

1823 Erving, George William, 1771-1850; minister to Spain.
June 2

To Asbury Dickins, Treasury Department, Washington.

[New York.] Has received the report of the committee and finds the documents most valuable. Would like to publish them abroad "for the honor of Mr. Crawford" but doubts if American politics would hold the interest of Europe. Has not yet seen Echford.
A.L.S. 2p. 9 1/4 x 7 3/4 in.

Postscript: Has met Echford at dinner with Mr. Van Buren. Hears that Mr. Forsyte is in town.

To Rev. Samuel May Jr.

«Bristol, England» The writer was much interested in the Anti-Slavery Fair. Thinks that letters should be published anonymously in the Abolition periodicals unless the author permits the use of his or her name. A handbill stating the the exact purposes of the Fair should be printed. Many English people don't know what the proceeds are used for. They also think that American slaves are very happy. The writer has been studying the history of the Mass. Anti-Slavery Soc'y. Discusses the case of Mr. Sargent and Mr. Parker. Says Miss Martineau's recovery has been aided by mesmerism, but regrets her attitude toward it. Her [illegible]ntal powers have been [illegible] impaired. A long discussion [illegible]smerism follows. Ends letter by asking a number of questi[illegible] on Anti-Slavery matters.

⌊Bristol, England⌋ The writer complains of the lack of forbearance among the Abolitionists. There is too much division of opinion. Can understand the reluctance of the Unitarian ministers to join the Mass. Anti-Slavery Society. Garrison and his group are too violent and intolerant. The American clergy should be encouraged to do something instead of being abused for having their own ideas. Reports conversations with Parkman, Coleman, Simmons, and Martineau. Mentions Douglass' Life, and his proposed visit to England. Asks about a Mr. Dodd who wrote on mesmerism. Speaks of the box of articles to be sent to the next A S Fair. Mentions the improvement in the condition of th[illegible]t Indian negroes, the style of the Liberator, Oberlin In[illegible]tute, books from America, death penalty for teaching negroes, the Protest, and a letter from a freed West Indian slave.

The abuse of ministers for not allowing the discussion of political topics in their churches even on Sunday is wrong in principle and bad in taste. Frederick Douglass would not obtain permission to lecture "in our chapel. I, for one of the congregation should be unwilling to consent to it." Discusses the possible visit of Douglass. The writer, because of his recent illness, cannot invite him to his house. Believes Douglass could do more good if he stayed with Quakers than with a Unitarian. «Bristol, Eng.» The writer explains that it was his purpose to obtain information about American abolitionism to use in a little paper which he is preparing for the people of his neighborhood. Elucidates, throughout the letter, the difference between the British and the American method of advocating anti-slavery in public. A letter from a Mrs. Fry, which the writer sent Mr. Samuel May, appeared in the Liberator of Jan. 30, though with the name suppressed. A liberal benefactor to the Boston fair, to whom the writer lent this number, was shocked by the heading and the discussion of the "Rights of God" (the article so named in the paper)" and with Mr. Garrison's comments upon the whol[illegible]air. «Bristol, England?» Pages 1 and 2 of this letter appear to be missing. The writer continues a discussion of a letter to be published in the Christian World. The letter was written on several different days. Orders a copy of the Liberator to be sent to Miss Harriet Lupton. Plans to send a book of etiquette for young ladies to Rev. May. Heard a rumor that Douglass and Garrison had quarreled. Miss Carpenter has been ill. "An epidemic catarrah, called influenza(I believe not contagious) has been extraordinarily prevalent..." Inquires about the prevailing belief in the Revelations of A. J. Davis, the "Poughkeepsie Seer".

are anxious to help the cause, are versed in the mysteries of 'New Organization' history." Though Mr. Grant is quite orthodox, yet he admires and willingly published the addressee's "Come outer." No known Unitarian in England would have the hundredth part of his influence. "A little contre temps occurred while your family were in London... endangering Mr. G«rant»'s personal interest in them." The writer threw himself into the breach, and everything was composed after a time. The writer traveled to London with George Thompson and Robert Charleton, whom he describes as a kind but weak man, "believing whatever Jos.Sturge or J.S[illegible]ble would tell him..."

«Bristol, (England)» The writer, fearing that Garrison's answer to Mr. (James) Grant "might prove a cutting one," tried to prepare him for it, stressing Garrison's "unselfish devotion to the cause," and his readiness to die for it. This letter is concerned mainly with Mr.Grant. The writer describes him as a Scotsman, not highly educated. The circulation of the Morning Advertiser has increased since since he has had the sole management. He has always had strong anti-slavery feelings. While he will never sympathize much with Garrison, he "gives him credit for a devotion to the A.S.cause which he himself never felt for any ca[illegible]." The writer tells of his experience with Grant as an ed[illegible] and criticizes him as a writer. Recounts an embarrass[illegible]g episode. Having been introduced by the writer to Mrs. Chapman and her party in London, Mr.Grant was very attentive to them with various civilities, including the gift of opera tickets, which were used, but never acknowledged. Mr.Grant was painfully annoyed, and, as his daughter told the writer, "the unnoticed reception of his efforts did seem to them like intentional rudeness." The Westons themselves, when told about it, seemed to resent the reproach. The writer concluded that they were "in a great whirl in London & not methodical in their arrangements." «Park St., (Bristol, England)» Tells of Mary Estlin's referring to" 'that extraordinary letter about Mr. Mathews', with the recollection of which she seems overwhelmed..." The writer, however, believes that the addressee "had taken up some erroneous notion about him (E. Mathews) & a 'World Convention.'" The writer knows "no able and influential people" who could lead in the forming of such a convention and "securing its being a safe one for the true cause." The Estlins have been "helping Mathews against his orthodox friends." The "orthodox dissenting chapels" were refused for his lecture, and no dissenting minister attended it. The great battle is with (John) Scoble. He called on Mr. (J[illegible] Grant "to wheedle or frighten him about inserting M«athews»' letters, but Mr. G«rant» is not to be shaken." The writer believes that Mr.Mathews will be a powerful agent in "removing prejudice against Garrison." It seems to the writer "innocent and natural" that E.Mathews should have reminded George Thompson of the Free Mission Baptists, whom he forgot to mention when praising the American A.S. Society. G. Thompson seems now to understand and appreciate E. Mathews. The writer expects the latter to be most effective in exposing Scoble. Mr. (William) Farmer seemed anxious about G. Thompson's pecuniary affairs.

«15 Craven Hill, Bayswater, (England)» The writer's special mission is "to keep Mr. (James) Grant up to the mark & in good humor with correct A.S. people: which includes keeping him, as much as possible, at variance with the Scobelite party!" Scoble complained because Mr. Grant did not send him E. Mathews's letters for examination before admitting them to the Morning Advertiser. (Josiah?) Henson complained that the Morning Advertiser articles had "stopped his supplies." Mr. Grant sees "into what difficulties his schemes about the Dawn Institute" have brought Scoble. E. Mathews told Mr. Grant and the writer the story of his being lynched. Mrs. Follen is anxious to g[illegible] an English petition in behalf of Drayton and Sayres. [illegible] writer called on M. who was writing a history of "the crime of December." The writer extols E.Mathews, who is doing the cause, and even the American A.S. Society "more good than Mr.Wendell Phillips could at this moment." The real cause of hostility to the Garrison party does not arise from religious opinions, but from fear of disturbance in the American & English sects. Tomorrow the writer is going to see the Crafts. Hopes they will continue at the school. "Miss Lushington said Lady Beyrons will contribute for the ensuing schooling." Mrs.Follen has been in poor health. The writer feels "utterly incompetent to comprehend the pathological conditions of the 'American constitution'."

To Dr. John Bishop Estlin

«Boston» The writer was much gratified that Dr. Estlin had met and liked W. L. Garrison. Gives a long account of the case of Joseph, a slave, who stowed away on the brig Ottoman. Asks Dr. Estlin if certain prominent men(Jay, Wardlaw, J. A. James, and others) could be persuaded to join the A-S League. Discusses Frederick Douglass' relations with the British & Foreign Anti-Slavery Society. Praises an article by William Hincks. Discusses James Haughton, Richard D. Webb, Elihu Burritt, and others; Douglass' allusion to Unitarian practice in regard to Communion; and the Evangelical Alliance. Explains why he left his church in Leicester.

«Park Street, Briston, Engl.» The writer has made a list of the contents of the box just sent off for the Boston fair. The lock of Thomas Clarkson's hair is genuine. More than two hundred people viewed the donations while they were laid out in the writer's drawing-room. The writer's uncle, Mr.Reynolds, had a large part of the Mass.Society's last report printed in the Record Newspaper. A tract in Chambers' Miscellany has diffused much information on American slavery. Publications like "Ten Years' Experience" are more useful here than the Liberty Bell. The Life of Frederick Douglass has been read with deep interest. The writer's fathe[illegible]s expressed to Mr.(Samuel) May his regret that the Abo[illegible]ists "waste their time & influence in disputing on the best course of action..."

Although it appears that stationery is the most useful donation, the Bristol ladies wish also to send their work, so "that our hands may be engaged in the same cause as yours." Frederick Douglass is expected at the end of March ; "we have disposed of upwards of 150 copies" of his Narrative. «Park St., Bristol, England» Expresses gratification by the visit of Garrison and F. Douglass. Praises Garrison's patient manner and his zeal. Emphasizes the influence of Christian teaching on Garrison's ideas and actions. Garrison was generally surrounded by intense sympathizers; however, the writer tried to get friends who were infected by the British & Foreign Anti-Slavery Society to meet him. The writer has read in the Liberator the complimentary notice of her father's pamphlet. "Here it does just the work he designed it for." Frederick Douglass, wherever he goes, "arouses sympathy in your cause & love for himself." Articles for the Boston bazaar are beginning to pour [illegible]n Auxiliary League is to be formed.

Bristol, England. Contributions for the bazaar have been sent to Liverpool for shipping; they are more numerous and more heterogeneous than those of previous years. 535 people, besides four schools, visited the collection when it was on view. Garrison's departure causes sadness. "We have to fight a great many battles for him" with those who know him only through the published reports of his speeches. If Garrison's course is the best for America, "we shall be less grieved at his having failed to enlist the sympathies of many in England who are not hostile to the cause."

«Bristol, England» Reports on the forwarding of late donations and the failure to collect a substantial contribution in Liverpool. Microscopic slides have been prepared for the Boston fair by the writer's cousin Augustin Prichard, a surgeon and son of Dr.(James Cowles) Prichard. The writer rejoices that Garrison was able to stay longer than he first planned. "His speech at Newcastle must do much to remove the unfavorable impression entertained of some of his tenets... We still are obliged to fight many battles for him." Friends in Exeter are likely still to contribute to the Boston fair. To "My dear Miss Weston".Anne W. Weston.

.Bristol, (England). At the request of the addressee's sister, the writer is forwarding lines by Lucy Stanford for the Liberty Bell. Dwells on her visitors (the addressee's sisters) "that have been rendering our abode an envied paradise of late." Encloses the Resolution of the (Bristol) Ladies Anti-slavery Committee, which will show that they are "determined to carry on the work which your sisters have entrusted to us to complete..." The writer has drawn up a bill of indictment against the Broad St. Society "on the ground of which our Bristol Committee means formally to withdraw from all connection with it." The writer cl[illegible] credit for the "education of my pupils" — women who eigh[illegible]ths ago were ignorant of the development of New Organizati[illegible]. It is difficult to make the English, especially Quakers, understand "that it is not the most enlarged kind of Antislavery to help & cooperate with 'all parties'." Refers to "such crafty antagonists"as Mr.Charleton and Joseph Sturge. Mrs.Chapman thinks that, although the conflict with the followers of Joseph Sturge may be long, "the Lord has delivered them into our hands." The writer takes pride in Miss Tribe as a pupil because, having derived her ideas of American anti-slavery from Captain Charles Stuart, she formerly imb[illegible] "the holy horror of Mr.Garrison." To Mrs. W. C. Barclay «Paris» The writer is sending a printed copy of his "Reply" to the addressee's circular. Disparages the "movement now being made in Glasgow... to obstruct the efforts of American Emancipationists." The writer feels that he must use all the information and influence that he has to counteract "the misapprehension which that statement is calculated to disseminate". Hopes to circulate his reply in all quarters where the Glasgow Appeal has been sent.

A.L.S. 3 p. 7 1/4 x 4 1/2 in.

On page 3 is a note signed C.W. (Caroline Weston) requesting that this letter be sent to A.W. Weston:"...it is quite too good to be lost - a mode[illegible]ter indeed."

Accompanied by an envelope, [illegible]h the date 1850 and various notations in pencil, including "Letter of J.B.Estlin." 3 1/8 x 4 3/4 in.

«Briston, Engl.» As the addressee has been interested in the republication of Frederick Douglass' Life, the writer is suggesting the omission of a few lines describing the slave breeding. The writer could not circulate the narrative among his friends, especially ladies, until he had erased this paragraph. The writer's daughter has been very busy collecting articles for the Boston fair. The writer had intended to draw up a concise statement of the aims of the abolitionists, but was prevented by a severe illness. Has long been a regular reader of the Liberator and corresponds with Mr. Samuel May. Rejects, however, Garrison's [illegible] of forbearance towards those who in any way differ [illegible] his views..." Expects that Garrison will call "the late noble Protest of 170 Unitarian

.5 Gray St., Edinburgh, (Scotland). The writer declines the addressee's invitation to visit her at the home of Harriet Martineau. Thought a meeting at the railroad station at Kendal Junction might have been arranged. Wishes the addressee would personally interview the Scotch Abolitionists. "The Wighams long to know you personally ... Old Mr. Wigham (the husband of Mrs. W. & Elizah's father) hates the whole thing, grumbles at the upturning of the house at Bazaar time ... Then those Wighams with whom Mrs. Stowe stayed are very much of the Anna Richardson school ..." Speaks of the change in her relations to the caus[illegible]sulting resulting from her father's death. [Bristol, England] Referring to the expected visit of F. Douglass, the writer remarks: "I doubt not he will succeed in promoting his own interests ... Mr. [S. J.] May has warned people ... to beware of F. Douglass if he says a word about 'infidels,' or shows the least want of reverence for Mr. Garrison." Elaborates on Douglass's prospects. Praises S. J. May-"so loving & lovable"-but imagines that his charity might in some cases "do mischief." The writer has had "too Bostonian an A. S. education not to discover points where he fails to discern a difference ..." The writer refers to the collection for the (Anti-Slavery) [illegible]versary. "Miss Remond's lectures bought £10 for that ob[illegible]" She has begun a course of study at the Ladies' College through the kindness of Mrs. (Elizabeth J.) Reid, and"has won many to the love of the cause ..."

[Durdham Down, Bristol (England)] "I live with you far more than in my own town or country." The writer rejoiced in the passing of the abolition amendment in the House of Representatives. Refers with regret to the dissentients like W.Phillips, S.S.Foster, and P.Pillsbury. Wonders why they should be "raking up the past & distrusting the future instead of drawing forth hope out of the present." The writer was aggravated by Mrs. (Abby Kelley) Foster's suggestion at the Mass. annual meeting "to release Mrs.Chapman and Miss Weston." The writer's wish to visit America is re-doubled, but her health "collapses under conditions of travelli[illegible]." Describes her present life. When the writer was in Dubl[illegible]he was touched by Mr.(Richard D.) Webb's "tender considera[illegible]n for his daughters & guests."

«Durdham Downs, Bristol, (England)» The writer was staying with Harriet Lupton when "the joyful intelligence of Richmond's fall & Lee's surrender came" and also when the news of Lincoln's death was announced "in large placards on news boards." The previously hostile journals joined in the "common utterances of sympathy with your people & reverence for your martyred President." The writer joined a sewing circle for the Freedmen's Aid; it consists of members of the Lewin's Mead congregation, called by Mrs. Armstrong, and meets in the house of the minister, R. C. Jones. Considerable ignorance about the freedmen was manif[illegible]d by the members. The writer has read E. Quincy's farewe[illegible] the Nat. Anti-Slavery Standard.

«Bristol (England)» The writer assures the addressee of her constant thoughts, especially during the time spent with Garrison. Hopes to see Garrison and the addressee's sister sail, and revive memories of the addressee's departure in 1855 and Garrison's in 1846. The writer's desire to go to America is "only lulled for the winter season, not abated." The writer has been able to gather some knowledge of Garrison's method of treating the Freedmen's Aid question. Garrison was perplexed about "the right mode of dealing with the sectarian element," which affects the British subscriptions. The writer and Garrison talked about th[illegible]andard; he tried to enlighten Mr.Webb, but the latter "ha[illegible] have his idols broken." The writer enjoyed Mr.Dicey's Rus[illegible]an notes, "doubly because they came from the pen of your son in law." 4p. 7½ x 4½ inches
